1. Where are the prophets whose vision is free,
2. Where are the prophets who'll help us to grieve,
3. Where are the prophets who dare face the night,
4. Where are the prophets who'll help us find hope, free, as the God they be - lieve in is free, grieve what we cling to, and know we must leave:

en - tering the dark - ness while we chase light, kin - dling our cour - age to change, and cope free to say no to a life we hold dear, pow - er and priv - ilege and pride in kind, mock - ing the mo - tives that lure us war, in a new world whose re - sour - ces to we share?

and free to say yes to a fu - ture we fear?
with lit - tle or no care for those left be - hind?
ex - plod - ing the slo - gans we go to war for?
Oh, where are the pro - phets to sum - mon us there?
